

IN THE INTEREST OF THE SUGAR
BEET INDUSTRY.

The Missouri State Horticultural Society has devised a plan relating to the development of sugar beet industry in that State. The plan has been submitted to President McKinley with a view to making it general for the whole country. It is proposed that the Government establish in each State, a station, where the saccharine qualities of sugar beets can be tested. The principal paper of each county will be asked to supply the Secretary of Agriculture with the names of twenty farmers, who would likely take an interest in sugar beet experiments.

Each of these will be supplied with sufficient seed to make a reasonable experiment, and a given number of pounds of each farmer's beets will be sent to the testing station. The results of these tests to be tabulated and published by the Government, in bulletin form for the benefit of the manufacturers and others who are interested in the growing of beets or their manufacture into sugar.

By such an arrangement, the quality of sugar beets raised in any locality can be determined and will be positive information for investors either in land necessary for cultivation, or those who may desire to enter into the manufacture of beet sugar.

If the percentage of saccharine matter in the beet amounts to 12 per cent, sugar can be profitably made from it. It is given as a fact that the importation of sugar for each year amounts to $100,000,000, and 60 per cent of this amount is beet sugar.

In Germany, where land for farming purposes is five times as valuable as general farming land in the United States, much of it is used for sugar beet culture, and to add to the cost, the land there is enriched with imported fertilizers.

If a foreign country can raise sugar beets profitably under such conditions, and find a market for its product of sugar in this country at a profit, it would seem plausible that with cheaper land and better facilities in every way, the United States could save the $60,000,000 annually sent to foreign countries for this particular product.

Major McKinley is greatly interested in the subject and as home industry is strictly in accord with the fundamental principles of the McKinley bill, it is expected that he will favor the plan submitted by the Missouri Horticultural Society.

THE CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE.

The Legislature which Mr. Hanna's sack was instrumental in inflicting upon the people of California was, perhaps, the most corrupt body that ever convened in that State, not excepting the San Francisco Board of Supervisors. It was conceived in sin, born in iniquity and flourished and fattened on bribery and corruption. From the moment it convened until it was adjourned sine die its course was crooked. Duckworth, the chief clerk of one of the Houses, who was proved a thief before the Legislature was fairly organized, was whitewashed by his confederates in crime and permitted to remain in office until the close of the session and then furnished with a certificate of good character by those with whom he shared the spoils. Two newspaper correspondents were arrested at the instance of the principal plunderers for not divulging the names of the persons who gave them information that led to the exposure of a part of the rottenness of the Legislature. Those correspondents were persecuted and prosecuted for directing public attention to the bribery of members of the Legislature, but no effort was made to expose the bribe-givers and bring the bribe-takers to justice. The telegrams which furnished the proof of the corrupt methods by which it was sought to pass certain members were boxed up at the telegraph office and sent by express to Reno. By the timely act of the honest members of the Legislature the criminating telegraphic messages were intercepted by an officer at Truckee and taken back to Sacramento, read in open session and proved to the satisfaction of the public that all that was alleged by the persecuted correspondents was true.

California has just cause to complain of the results of Mr. Hanna's expenditures in that State in the recent campaign. It gave the State the most conscienceless body of thieves that ever convened to make laws for the people, and all good citizens should devoutly pray that they never again may be inflicted by such a lot of scoundrels.

The California Legislature adjourned at an early hour Sunday morning. The last hours were given over to merriment and speech making and the usual presentations were features of the occasion. Chief Clerk Duckworth seemed to be the principal issue of the Assembly and much of the time of the session has been occupied in trying to defeat his schemes. Even at the last moment, a lively fight, in which the attaches joined was made to shut him out from a $500 appropriation for clearing up the work at the desks. He lost the appropriation, but it was about the only thing during the session that he was beaten on. His qualities as a manipulator and lobbyist, will without doubt, receive future recognition.

The charges made by Governor Dadd of California against State Printer Johnston, were investigated by a joint committee of the Legislature, and the report submitted is a complete vindication of Mr. Johnston. The report deals in detail with all of the charges made by the Governor, and every one was shown to be without foundation. The following in a concluding paragraph:

"In conclusion we desire to say that we have been agreeably surprised in finding the system that prevails in this institution. It is larger than we, or, we are satisfied, a majority of the people of the State, realized. We find that Mr. Johnston, the Superintendent, is a practical printer of long experience, and thoroughly competent to handle the institution under his charge. He has under him a corps of efficient assistants, and a discipline prevails in the State Printing office rarely to be found in public institutions. It is conducted in all respects as a first-class private institution would be."

This probably ends one of the scandals stirred up in the California Legislature, and leaves the Governor in an unenviable position and the criticism that he will be subjected to will not be pleasant.

H. WEINSTOCK of Sacramento has commenced a libel suit against the Bee of that city, for $50,000. The Bee is charged with publishing an article on March 3d, concerning the plaintiff, that was false, malicious, and defamatory. Weinstock is a member of the firm of Weinstock & Lubin and is a prominent man in public affairs. The article reflected severely on Weinstock's political methods and charged that a combine had been formed among the City Trustees to elect the plaintiff Mayor and control the fall election and the patronage of the city.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—There were less than fifty members on the floor when the House entered on the second day of the tariff debate at 10 o'clock. As the day advanced the members poured in and the galleries became crowded.

Gibson of Tennessee was the first speaker and he delivered a general argument in favor of protection.

Dockery of Missouri, who followed, said it was not a surprise to him that the discussion so far had been tame and uninteresting.

"The truth is," said he, "that the people of this country want more money and less taxes. This bill does not represent the issue of the late campaign. The people would prefer to see $113,000,000 more money put in circulation than to see that amount absorbed by the treasury."

Dockery said it did not lie in the mouths of Republicans to criticize the bond issues of the last administration.

"Cleveland was criticised on this side of the House," said he, "while you endorsed his policy in the last Congress. Your Committee on Ways and Means refused to give the House an opportunity to vote on the Senate resolution prohibiting bond issues because your leaders had been notified by fifty Republicans from the west they would be compelled to vote for it."

Dockery ridiculed the idea that the present tariff law was a monster which had destroyed our industries. If it had done so, why he asked, had the Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee lifted the metal and cotton schedules almost bodily from their monstrous law? He denied there was an era of prosperity for labor during the existence of the McKinley law and instanced the Carnegie strike.

"That catastrophe," interrupted Dalzell, "was the result of a contest between organized labor and the opponents of organized labor. The McKinley law had nothing to do with it."

"Yes, and the protected employer hired Pinkerton detectives to shoot down organized labor," returned Dockery. "A distinguished Republican, then a member of the House, told me at the time it was the worst disaster the Republican party had experienced in twenty years."

Dockery was especially sarcastic in his remarks on the absurdity of the alleged protection of agricultural products. Of the $569,000,000 of products exported by the United States last year $504,000,000 was agricultural products. In conclusion he said the policy of protection had driven our flag from the high seas, impoverished the laboring man and multiplied farm mortgages.

Newlands, silverite of Nevada, then took the floor as the spokesman of his party, which numbers three members in the House.

Mr. Newlands of Nevada discussed the tariff bill from the standpoint of the silver men who united with the Democrats and Populists during the last campaign in opposition to the Republicans. This alliance, he said, still continued and was likely to amalgamate the combined forces into one strong party with silver as the supreme dominant issue, all other questions being subordinate to it, and the largest tolerance being exercised as to the difference of opinion on other questions which hitherto divided various elements constituting the silver element.

He spoke at considerable length and made a convincing argument that both monetary and industrial legislation were necessary. Tariff legislation alone, he asserted, would not bring relief.

The fine residence of A. A. Cohen at Alameda was destroyed by fire yesterday. The house was filled with costly paintings, curios and works of art. The loss is reported at $500,000.

TELEGRAPHIC NOTES.

Late dispatches from Constantinople give details of an outbreak on Sunday at Toka, Asia Minor, where Turks attacked the Armenians while the latter were at church. One hundred Christians were massacred, and the Armenian houses were given over to pillage. The Sultan relies on the support of Russia and thinks he has nothing to fear from the so-called concert of Powers and consoles himself with the belief that he will survive this circumstance as he has others of a more serious nature.

Blanthier, the murderer, died in the Meridian jail in Texas yesterday. His remains were identified. The jail officials and physicians made a hard fight to save him as a reward of $1,000 was offered for his arrest and conviction.

Mrs. Scheppler, a bride of three days, left her husband without any apparent good reason. Her husband claims that she has been seen at Nevada City and believes that she was dragged and abducted by a former lover.

The Mississippi river is falling and the conditions in and around the flooded districts near Memphis are more encouraging.

The last day of the celebration of the Centennial of the birth of Emperor William I. was marked by a monster procession in Berlin.

President McKinley yesterday wired a reprieve to the Governor of New Mexico, granting a stay in the execution of F. Borrego, A. Borrego, L. Alaird and P. Valencia, sentenced to be hanged for the murder of ex-sheriff Frank Chavez. The prisoners were on their way to the scaffold when the reprieve was received.

The Senatorial contest in Kentucky between Blackburn and Haute is close, the latter has 53 and the former 51 votes, there are a few scattering; necessary to a choice, 70 votes.

Rudolph Spreckels won a suit against his parents at San Francisco yesterday confirming his ownership to $1,000,000 worth of property which had formerly been conveyed to him by his father. Claus Spreckels gave his son the property some three years ago, but subsequent family trouble caused him to change his mind and he claimed the property was community property and that Mrs. Spreckels had not consented to the transfer.

A train wreck occurred on the Big Four road near Springfield, O., yesterday seriously injuring over twenty persons. The wreck was caused by a freight train breaking in two.

The Farmers and Merchants bank at Paris, Texas, closed its doors yesterday at 10 o'clock. It was one of the oldest financial institutions in the State and had a capital of $200,000. A run on the bank was the cause of the failure. There is a decidedly panicky feeling and it is thought that other banks will suffer.

Corbett and Fitzsimmons lunched together yesterday at San Francisco and talked over the fight situation. Corbett begged for another fight, but Fitz still claimed that he had retired from the ring but if he changed his mind he promised Corbett the first chance.

Vadaha, Illinois, experienced a sharp earthquake shock at a late hour night before last. The vibrations were from west to east.

Professor Walker and four children are reported dying from injuries received in the Atlanta, Georgia, cyclone day before yesterday. These will increase the number of fatalities heretofore reported.

Shoes! Shoes! For men, youths and children, fully 25 per cent cheaper than any place in town, for a few days only. Men's shoes at $1.25 a pair; children's shoes at $1 a pair, at the grand clearance sale of S. Jacobs, the leading clothier.

Perfume in the Olden Times.
The use of perfume was indulged in to such an extravagant degree by the ancients that some of the more ascetic men had good reason to denounce it.
Solon issued an edict prohibiting its sale in Athens. Julius Caesar and Lucius, who were Roman consuls in 565, published a law forbidding the sale of exotics in that city, and by the laws of Lycongrus perfumers were expelled from Sparta as being wasters of oil and encouragers of sensuousness. Clearchus wrote against the excessive use of unguents, and Socrates declaimed against them in strong terms, preferring, he said, "the smell of healthy toil and the perfume of a good and manly life." It was customary at festivals to pass round to the guests perfumes served in alabaster boxes and vessels of gold. At one of these feasts Cynullos, who loved to denude the youth for the use of perfumes, was made a butt for their ridicule.
Some mischievous youth anointed the cynos with much oil and face. When he awoke, he exclaimed in an angry voice: "What is this? O Hercules, will not some one come with a sponge and wipe my face, which is thus polluted with a lot of dirt?"
At the Syrian banquets it was usual for the slaves to come in with bladders full of Babylonian perfumes and below the girdles and walls and hangings and fill the halls with delicious fragrance. In some of the more modern feasts statues and ornaments were provided which jets threw out diluted scences and attars.—London Society.

Saluting a Cat.
There is at least one place in the world where the cat was until recently held in high honor and received the attention due to one of so high a station in life. That place is India, where in a fortress the sentries invariably used to present arms to every cat that appeared on the scene.
The custom is accounted for by this singular anecdote, which comes from what appears to be good authority:
Some 50 years ago it happened that a very high English official died in an Indian fortress, at a place that is one of the centers of Brahminic religion, and at the moment when the news of his death met the spy guard at the main gate a black cat rushed out of it.
The superstitious guard presented arms to the cat as a salute to the dying spirit of the powerful Englishman, and the sentinels took a firm hold upon the reality, that up to a few years ago Brahminic orthodoxy nor odious superstition could deny that a cat was a messenger of good to any cat that came out at night.—Harper's Round

A Scotch Child.
I have a small cousin, aged 8, who has been contacted the very bad habit of smoking whenever he gets a chance.
The other evening, after he had been put to bed, his father went up stairs to the room where he was and began to search the youngster's pockets.
"The boy lay watching him for a few minutes, then suddenly sat up and exclaimed:
"Oh, father, I clean forgot! I bocht a pennyworth of cigarettes the day for a present to ye."
And just then his father drew four cigarettes out of one of the small pok-ets. Needless to say, he escaped tha. time.—Answers.

Mollibuzzers.
Women who are so pronounced in their aversion to men who assiduously read newspapers in street cars while women are standing ought to know that the men who read papers while standing are by far the more dangerous class.
There is a class of thieves, technically known as mollibuzzers, who always operate in street cars through the medium of newspapers. They work in pairs.
The accessory pretends to be so absorbed in his newspaper that he does not notice that it strikes the chin of a man near him and covers his scalp while the principal dexterously makes away with the pin. At other times the interested reader allows one sheet of the paper to cover the lap of a woman who has her pocketbook there, and the pocketbook thereupon disappears.—Philadelphia Record.

A Strategic Failure.
"Did I ever tell you how I got locked in school once?"
"No."
"Well, I got it. You see, half a dozen of us boys arranged to jump on the teacher at a given signal, and—"
"You were the only one that jumped?"
"Exactly!"—Chicago Record.

Essentials of a Good Dinner.
There are essentials for a good dinner that money cannot buy. Good humor garnishes, good will beautifies and good feeling gladdens more effectively than flowers, handsome china or expensive silver. The finest of viands pall when the diner is out of sorts with the world, and the simplest of fare becomes a feast when content waits on appetite. A lonely meal is a dyspepsia breeder. A meal eaten when anger stirs the heart is but the uttermost of apoplexy, and all the costly plenishment of the mil-lionaire's table will not save him under the laws of nature.—Philadelphia Times.

Forks.
Forks are commonly supposed to have been introduced into Europe not earlier than the twelfth or thirteenth century.
It is intimated by some writers that the three pronged fork mentioned as among the utensils of the tabernacle was a kind of fork. Forks were unknown in England until the beginning of the seventeenth century.
